

Why Your Jewish Girlfriend is Better than all the Other Fish in the Sea

Now that the Jewish men of the universe have gotten their time to gloat, its time to give credit to the gals who started it all: Jewish women.

In this day in age, most men are aware of the mysterious allure of Bar Rafaeli and Mila Kunis (yes, she really is Jewish), but what about the millions of other hot Hebrew ladies?

Although sometimes we get a bad rep for being a bit more on the aggressive side, what Jewish women lack in bashfulness is surely made up for with some attributes that aren't found elsewhere.

We have raised/will raise a whole generation of Jewish men to cherish, so its time to break off a piece of challah, fill up a glass with Manischewitz, and make a toast to the girls you will want to bring home to your mother one day, especially if you're a future doctor or lawyer with a good hairline.

Here are the reasons why JAPS (Jewish American Princesses) are the perfect girls to wife up:

Food

There really is nothing better than some matzah ball soup on a cold day, and coming from a line of Jewish mothers and grandmothers basically ensures that these girls know how to make the basics from scratch. If the way to his heart is really through his stomach, then some schnitzel, Gefilte fish and home-cooked Brisket should do the trick. And we're the only ones with Bubbe's best recipes.

Impeccable Hygiene

Growing up with a Jewish mother definitely led to some daily passive-aggressive and borderline obsessive musings on their daughters' appearances. Getting the mere "suggestions" from mother dearest to pluck their eyebrows, tame their wild hair, or lay off on the carbs have left behind some moderate anxiety about looks. In short, we know how to clean up nicely. Especially if we know potential Jew-boos will be within a 10-foot radius.

High Maintenance

Alright, now I admit that this may sound like a negative trait at first, but if you spin it the right way you can fully understand the positive side to extreme pickiness and a taste for luxury. High expectations=high standards. If a Jewish girl decides to settle down with you, consider yourself a non-shmuck.

Honesty

You know that horrible first date nightmare where you're afraid you have something stuck in your teeth the whole time? Not to fear, the brutally honest Jewish girls are here. Something we can also thank our mothers for is an inability to lie- cue Jewish guilt. Sometimes it may seem harsh, but honesty is vital to any relationship. Plus, you get used to not asking for an opinion if you don't want to hear an honest one in return.

Frugality

Not even supporting any stereotypes here but Jewish girls know how to hunt a bargain faster than the Duck Dynasty family can make foie gras. They won't waste your money-that's what Daddy is for! Just kidding, Sales are some of our greatest joys in life but if we do need to spend on something extravagant, we are I-N-D-E-P-E-N-D-E-N-T women who don't need men to cash in, although gifts are always appreciated.

Motherly Instincts

For 20-somethings, Jewish anxiety is the new Jewish guilt. Although she may worry about what you eat and if you're warm enough, a Jewish girl is just preparing to someday be the best mother she can be. If you're a Jewish boy, you know very well that no one compares to your mother, even if she does worry about you incessantly. Treat us right, and your future little bar/bat-mitzvah bound babies will be raised the right way.

Talent and Beauty

Like I mentioned before: Mila Kunis, Bar Rafaeli, and Natalie freaking Portman. Need I say more?